

A map of the Republic of the Congo, divided into administrative regions. The regions are color-coded based on population density: dark red for the highest density, red for high density, orange for medium density, and yellow for low density. The map shows a central white area, likely representing the capital city of Brazzaville, and a large yellow area in the south, likely representing the Zaire region. The coastline is visible on the west and south.

-  [0.2,0.6)
-  [0.6,1.3)
-  [1.3,2.2)
-  [2.2,3)
-  [3,9.1]

White background represents missing or suppressed data

