CSTE Executive Committee Candidate

CSTE APHL Conference

Gianfranco Pezzino, MD, MPH Candidate for President

I obtained my medical degree magna cum laude at the University of Bologna, Italy, in 1979 and my Master Degree in Public Health at the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health in 1991. I have been working in Public Health in several countries for almost 20 years. I joined the CDC Epidemic Intelligence Service in 1991, spent two years in Wisconsin, and completed my Preventive Medicine residency in 1994. I am board-certified in Preventive Medicine. I am currently the State Epidemiologist with the Kansas Department of Health and Environment, where I have been working for about seven years. I have been elected to the CSTE Executive Committee two years ago. Within CSTE, I have been the chair of the surveillance committee, and I have been involved in several initiatives and consultations, primarily in the area of NEDSS and medical informatics. My primary areas of interest are information systems integration and surveillance. If elected, my main focus areas will be: 1) to assure that CSTE remains a valuable and credible partner to CDC and other agencies and entities involved in shared projects; 2) to increase members' participation in CSTE initiatives, through a strengthening of the team and consultant structure; and, 3) to boost services to members, particularly through the use of the CSTE Web site and Internet resources.

CSTE APHL Conference

C. Mack Sewell, DrPH, MS Candidate for President-Elect

I am currently the State Epidemiologist and Director of the Office of Epidemiology with the New Mexico Department of Health, a position I have held since 1989. Previous positions include Deputy State Epidemiologist (New Mexico Department of Health, 1987-1989), staff epidemiologist (New Mexico Department of Health, 1984-1987), hospital epidemiologist (Houston Veterans Administration Medical Center, 1979-1984), and various clinical and public health laboratory positions for about 4 years. I received a doctorate in public health from the University of Texas School of Public Health (1982), a M.S. in microbiology from Colorado State University (1975), and a B.S. in biology from New Mexico State University (1971). Faculty appointments include the University of Texas School of Public Health (previously) and the University of New Mexico School of Medicine (currently a clinical associate professor).

My areas of interest are broad but primarily include the epidemiology of infectious diseases and the epidemiology of injuries. Over the last several years I have become more involved and interested in using epidemiologic information to develop good public policy.

I have a wife (Linda) who is a medical technologist, and 16 year old son (Bryan) who wants to be a pilot. My hobbies include camping, fishing, photography, and playing the pipe organ.

I have been a member of CSTE since 1985 and over the years have served as CSTE consultant for injury, public health advocacy, influenza, emerging infections, enteric diseases, and zoonotic diseases. I have served on the Executive Committee as a member-at-large, 1996-1999. I have most recently been very involved with CSTE's efforts on influenza pandemic planning and have also served as CSTE representative on the CDC effort to update recommendations on dealing with contacts of invasive Group A Streptococcus (GAS).

CSTE has had tremendous growth in the organization over the last several years. As a result of excellent leadership and dedicated members, CSTE serves as an important national organization to foster collaboration and coordination between federal agencies and state and local health departments. I would be delighted and honored to serve as CSTE's President. It would be a humbling experience to follow in the footsteps of previous CSTE Presidents.

CSTE Executive Committee Candidate

CSTE APHL Conference

Lawrence P. Hanrahan, PhD, MS Candidate for Member At Large

Larry Hanrahan is the senior epidemiologist in the Section of Environmental Health, Wisconsin Division of Public Health and Chief of the Epidemiology and Toxicology Section. Dr. Hanrahan joined the Division of Public Health in 1979. He holds both a masters of science and doctorate degree in epidemiology, and is an adjunct professor in Preventive Medicine at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. Since 1979, he has participated in numerous occupational and environmental epidemiology investigations at the Division of Public Health. He has written and co-authored many articles on environmental and occupational epidemiology and surveillance. As principal investigator of Wisconsin's implementation of the National Electronic Disease Surveillance System (NEDSS), he is responsible for overseeing the 'e-commerce' development, implementation and management of Wisconsin's statewide disease surveillance programs. He also serves as the principal investigator for the Wisconsin Health Alert Network program, the occupational Fatality Assessment Control Evaluation (FACE) surveillance program, and the Hazardous Substances and Emergency Event Surveillance (HSEES) system.

Ursula Bauer, PhD

Candidate for Chronic / MCH / Oral Health

Ursula Bauer has worked as the Chronic Disease Epidemiologist at the Florida Department of Health since 1997. Prior to that, she was an Epidemic Intelligence Service Officer assigned to the Chronic Disease Section of the Louisiana Office of Public Health. She joined CDC after completing her PhD degree in Epidemiology at Yale University in 1995. She also holds a MPH degree in Family Health from Columbia University. However, her credentials as a chronic disease epidemiologist come largely from her apprenticeships with Rebecca Meriwether and Richard Hopkins.

Ursula has been a member of CSTE since joining a state health department in 1997. During those four years she has participated in the Chronic Disease Indicators project (drafting several position statements), served as co-lead on the CDI technical work group for the past year; and represents CSTE on the ASTHO Tobacco Control Resource Council and the Guide to Community Preventive Services Tobacco working group.
